Dear Madam or Sir:

The accreditation criteria for Fabricator Inspection Programs for Precast/Prestressed Concrete (AC157) is being recommended for reapproval at the next IAS Accreditation Committee meeting.

AC157 was last approved by the accreditation committee in April 2017 and has been used for assessment activities since June 2017. No changes were suggested or recommended to the criteria since its implementation. However, following international practices, we have reviewed the criteria for its continued application. Based on this review, IAS staff does not recommend any changes to the criteria and recommends reapproval.

IAS intends to subject our accreditation criteria to committee consideration every five years to ensure they continue to be technically valid and provide utility to accredited customers and other stakeholders.

The current version of AC157 can be found on the IAS website, linked here – <https://www.iasonline.org/wp-content/uploads/2017/04/157-Apr-2017.pdf>
